A MATTER OF BALANCE:
Managing Concerns About Falls
Wednesdays, February 5th, 12th, 24th; March 5th & 12th
~ 10am-12 noon at  Caryl Community Center

One in every three adults age 65 and older experienc-es a fall every year and the fear of falling can actually make some people more vulnerable to falls. Through a generous grant from the MetroWest Health Foundation, Dover COA is offering a series of fall prevention workshops designed to reduce the fear of falling and to increase activity levels to promote strength. A Matter of Balance will be taught by Physical Therapists, Patty Osten and Cheryl Abelow. During this course, participants will learn to view falls and fear of falling as controllable; set realistic goals to increase activity; change their environment to reduce fall risk factors; and increase strength and balance. Medications will be reviewed by student pharmacists, balance exercises taught, and healthy snacks will be available each week. A suggested donation of $10 for this program includes booklet, six classes, private consultation with student pharmacists, and snacks. There are still openings if you would like to sign up. For more information or to register for the series, please call the Dover COA at 508 315-5734.

HEAVING PERENNIALS
During winter’s freeze-thaw cycles, newly planted perennials may “heave” out of the soil. Walk through the garden often during the winter months and simply step down any plants whose root balls have popped out of the soil. Doing this will help prevent winter damage to any exposed roots. I have written in past articles that I am replacing most of my hosta with Heuchera (coral bells). Several gardeners who have planted coral bells told me they died over the winter. This plant is notorious for heaving. If you plan on using coral bells in your garden (and I strongly recommend that you do), make sure you check them for heaving during the winter.

MD Anderson shares tips on avoiding the winter blues
(yourhoustonnews.com)

1. Eat a healthy diet. Feeling blue can make you desire foods high in fat, carbohydrates and sugar. But try to resist temptation. "A carbohydrate- and sugar-rich diet will spike your blood sugar and then it will drop," Cohen says. So, you may feel more energized initially. But in the long run, your feelings of tiredness and moodiness can intensify. Instead, eat more plant proteins, like vegetables, nuts and beans, fruits and whole grains. You'll get the vitamins, minerals and protein to restore your energy levels. Plus, it'll help you maintain a healthy weight to lower your cancer risks.

2. Get regular exercise. Exercise might be the first thing to go when you'd rather stay snuggled in bed. Don't let it. "The feel-good chemicals released during exercise can help ease anxiety and improve your mental health," Powers-James says. And, exercise strengthens the immune system, helps you maintain a healthy weight and reduces your risks for colon, breast and endometrial cancers. You should aim for at least two and a half hours of moderate physical activity or an hour and 15 minutes of more vigorous physical activity each week.

3. Try sun therapy. Winter typically means less light and more darkness, making you want to hibernate. Instead, get outside when the sun is shining. (But be sure to wear sunscreen.) "Being exposed to sunlight wakes up your body and allows it to adjust back to its normal sleep-wake cycle," Powers-James says. A midday walk outside can do the trick.

4. Increase social interactions. Being around family and friends can boost your mood and help motivate you to do the things you enjoy. Ask a friend to go to the movies or grab a cup of green tea with a co-worker. And, don't be shy, a phone call or email to ask for encouragement can go a long way. You may laugh more, worry less and gain a positive outlook. Plus, the person you call may benefit just as much as you from your contact.

5. Get enough sleep. "Sleep is restorative. It's a time for your body and mind to heal," Cohen says. "Getting too little or too much can cause moodiness, memory troubles and problems with thinking and focusing." You should aim for seven to eight hours of sleep each night, Cohen says. It will help you wake up feeling refreshed.

6. Practice relaxation techniques. Anxiety and stress often accompany a winter slump. And both are damaging to your health, Cohen says. To boost your energy and mood, try to relax. "Just five minutes of meditation can help you manage stress," ."

Scotch with two drops of water!!!
A lady goes to the bar on a cruise ship and orders a Scotch with two drops of water. As the bartender gives her the drink she says, 'I'm on this cruise to celebrate my 80th birthday and it's today.'

The bartender says, 'Well, since it's your birthday, I'll buy you a drink. In fact, this one is on me.' As the woman finishes her drink, the woman to her right says, 'I would like to buy you a drink, too.'

The old woman says, 'Thank you Bartender, I want a Scotch with two drops of water.' 'Coming up,' says the bartender. As she finishes that drink, the man to her left says, 'I would like to buy you one, too.'

The old woman says, 'Thank you. Bartender, I want another Scotch with two drops of water.' 'Coming right up,' the bartender says. As he gives her the drink, he says, 'Ma'am, I'm dying of curiosity. Why the Scotch with only two drops of water?'

The old woman replies, 'Sonny, when you're my age, you've learned how to hold your liquor. Holding your water, however, is a whole other issue.'
